John,

First, I wanted to thank you for presenting the feedback from the community. When reviewing the letters, I think that you can see that after the risks are explained to residents, the overwhelming sentiment is to prevent any foothold of an oil production facility (of any kind) in Huasna.

I was especially impressed with the research done by the firm sponsored by In-N-Out Burger (INOB). I think that the firm clearly spent a great deal of time evaluating the DEIR and highlighted so many areas where it falls short as to almost invalidate the document. (I think that Excelaron should get some of the money back from the DEIR consultant...I'm not sure if plagiarism applies...but it does show the cut/paste efforts made in actually addressing our concerns.)

The bottom line is that no oil development in this area is really environmentally feasible. I truly believe that the risk/reward for development is clearly against any development (even IF the applicant were to live up to their promises regarding trucking, sound, light, fracking, etc).
