Kevin Parzych M.D., Chief Medical Officer

- Wilshire provides in-home healthcare services
- Clinical services are what fund their community services
- Home health is a Medicare paid or insurance paid service wherein specific needs are evaluated by visits from nurses/physical therapists to the home
- Hospice services are another very important service provided by Wilshire
- Wilshire and Dignity Health are the only non-profit hospices in SLO
 - Hospice programs include music centers, advanced bereavement, etc
- Wilshire provides a geriatric-only primary care practice
 - This started in assisted-living facilities

- The vision is that eventually this will be non-concierge house call practice
- A brand-new addition is that Wilshire now offers mental health services
 - This is also available through Medicare billing
- A potential project in the future is to leverage local services to provide a dementia-specific consult service to the community
- Wilshire uses a telehealth product that is person-focused rather than data-focused
- An identified need by Wilshire is to find funding outside of Medicare/insurance in order to meet the needs of the organization and expand

Reports:

- ASPC met on January 5th. The presentation was given by David Goss with EMS concerning how EMS responds by age groups, locations, etc. The data focused on statistics of ground-level falls in older adults. Karen Jones provided a presentation on legislative processes and funding.
